

John and Katy are friends. Both have identical balls (exactly same in dimensions and weight) but John's ball is hollow while that of Katy is solid. While playing their balls get mixed. How will they distinguish between their balls?

P.S. - There is no water source around.